Description

Misconfigured redirects can lead to incorrect locations. This can confuse users, ruin their experience, increase the number of HTTP requests to your website, and result in a traffic drop and crawling budget decline. The checks in this section help you maintain control over your redirects and pinpoint room for improvement related to them.

Issue description

The pages indicated in the report return a 3XX response code, meaning that a redirect is set up from such pages. The 3XX response code in itself is not a problem, but each redirect puts an additional load on the server, so it's better to remove unnecessary internal redirects.

How to fix

Make sure that the number of 3XX pages on your website does not exceed 5% of the total number of pages. If their number exceeds 10%, then you have a critical problem, and you should immediately remove some of the redirects.

Issue description Note that search engines cut off extensively long titles and allow them to be up to 600 pixels in length in the SERPs. Issue description Having the same content on different pages of your website can negatively affect its optimization efforts because its content isn't unique. Moreover, duplicate pages can result in cannibalization issues.		How to fix Find and eliminate the problem that's causing duplicate content issues. To solve this issue, you can set up a 301 redirect from the duplicate page to the original one or use the rel=canonical attribute on the page that you prefer to get indexed. If you want to prevent search engines from following links on your web pages, use the noindex, nofollow tags, and if you want to allow them to do so, use the noindex, follow tags. Another option is to make the content on one of the duplicate pages unique.

Issue description The &lt;h1&gt; tag is the top-level page heading, which is the most important &lt;h&gt; tag. People usually see the &lt;h1&gt; tag as the title of the text, and search engines use it to understand what the page is about. Keep in mind that from the SEO perspective, the &lt;h1&gt; tag is the second most important tag after the &lt;title&gt; tag.		How to fix Make sure all of your web pages have a unique &lt;h1&gt; header tag. Depending on the website type and page structure, there may be more than one &lt;h1&gt; tag, but it is highly recommended to use only one &lt;h1&gt; tag per page. The key thing to keep in mind here is that your pages need to be logically structured.

Issue description Duplicate &lt;h1&gt; headings on different pages prevent search engines from understanding which site page is relevant to a particular search query. Pages with duplicate header tags are less likely to rank well, as they can confuse search engines about the page topic.		How to fix Write a unique &lt;h1&gt; for each page on your site, adding a clear description of the content on the page.

Description Internal links help search engine crawlers discover new web pages and ensure link equity distribution across the website. External links help support ideas and facts expressed in content with data from external sources. Both are indispensable components for a good user experience. However, they can ruin it if they don't work properly. This section checks whether the links on your website work correctly. It also suggests improvements if it discovers any issues.

Issue description Some internal links on your website point to pages whose URL has changed. Redirects allow both visitors and search engines to access the relevant page, but we still recommend you replace such links. In some cases, such links may cause the page to work incorrectly (for example, if the site was moved to HTTPS and internal links still use the HTTP protocol). Redirects also result in the loss of a small fraction of the link juice.	How to fix Replace all internal links indicated in the report with up-to-date page URL addresses.
